

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Location information for a node in a network is determined. A first distance from the node to at least one global landmark node is determined and a second distance from the node to at least one local landmark node proximally located to the node is determined. Location 5 information for the node based on the first distance and the second distance is generated.